Fierce Fight Before Truce

Israeli Cabinet OKs cease-fire deal, but hostilities rage on

JERUSALEM | Israel's Cabinet became the final party to sign on to the U.N. cease-fire deal Sunday, while Israeli planes blasted Beirut and ground troops battled Hezbollah in south Lebanon seeking to batter the militant Islamic group in the hours before fighting stopped.

Hezbollah hit back with its heaviest rocket barrage yet on northern Israel.

The guns were supposed to fall silent at 8 a.m. Monday, according to the United Nations, ending a month of combat that has killed more than 900 people.

But implementation of the hard-won agreement was already in question Sunday night when the Lebanese Cabinet indefinitely postponed a crucial meeting dealing with plans to send 15,000 soldiers to police Hezbollah's stronghold in southern Lebanon.

Lebanese media reported that the Cabinet, which approved the cease-fire plan unanimously Saturday, was divided over demands that Hezbollah surrender its weapons in the south.

The deployment of the Lebanese army along Israel's border, with an equal number of U.N. peacekeepers, was a cornerstone of the cease-fire resolution passed Friday by the U.N. Security Council.

Fighting spiked in the final hours before the planned cease-fire. Some 30,000 Israeli soldiers fought fierce battles with guerrillas in Lebanon's south. A day after 24 of its soldiers were killed, Israel's army said five died in the latest fighting. Hezbollah reported one of its fighters killed, but did not say when. (AP)

VIGILANTES | Mobile Phones, Immobile Cars

Hampshire, England, officials are looking for someone who has been slashing drivers' tires after seeing the drivers using their cell phones while at the wheel, the Sunday Mirror reported. The perpetrator — suspected in at least 20 tire-slashings — leaves notes on the windshields of cars he or she attacks, using letters cut from newspapers, reading: "Warning. You have been seen driving while using your mobile phone." (EXPRESS) EyeOpeners | Page 2

TACO BELL

Think Outside The Brain

Doesn't Taco Bell already have taco sauce? Police say 10 to 15 pranksters in Marion, Ind., left six 40-gallon trash bags full of taco sauce packets at the restaurant.

A note attached to the bags said the group had been accumulating them for three years, storing them in the trunk of a car, authorities said. Police suspended an investigation Tuesday without any arrests, said Marion Deputy Police Chief Cliff Sessoms. "From everything we've got here, there doesn't appear that there has been any crime committed," he said. (AP)

OVERDUE

Another 21,900 Days, Another Dollar

William Fogarty doesn't understand the fuss — he just forgot to pay a parking ticket. When he finally realized it, the 86-year-old made good and mailed in a money order — to pay a $1 ticket he got 60 years ago. Fogarty got the ticket in Norfolk, Va., in May 1946. Soon after, he bought a $1 money order to pay the fine, but forgot to send it in. About a month ago, as he was looking through a box of collectibles, Fogarty discovered the money order. So he wrote a letter to the Norfolk Police Department and included the money order. "At my age, when I go out of here, I don't want to owe anyone a dime," he said. (AP) might be imminent; when deputies arrived, the man claimed he had called because he "wanted to see a hot chick." The deputies weren't amused. Engelhard was charged with falsely reporting an incident. (AP)

Do You Continue to Be Depressed?

The NIMH is conducting a study to test the effectiveness of AMPAkinine in major depression. This study examines a different mechanism of action from commonly used antidepressants. Our hope is to find new medications for individuals who have not responded to past treatment.

This is a 10-week outpatient and inpatient study of medication or placebo conducted at the NIH Clinical Center in Bethesda, Maryland.

Participants must:

- Be ages 21-55
- Be currently depressed
- Have taken an antidepressant that did not help

The study includes medical and psychiatric evaluations, and research medication at no cost. Transportation reimbursement provided.

A fire killed four people early Sunday in a two-story house where about a dozen people lived in makeshift rooms, some of them bedding down in closets, the state fire marshal said. The cause of the fire had not been determined. Authorities did not expect to find more bodies, Fire Marshal Roger Johnson said. Witnesses reported that several people fled the house "in rapid fashion" before police and fire officials arrived and had not returned, he said. Immigration officials had been to the scene, officials said. (AP)

U.S. Airports Lift Some Restrictions

TSA eases some rules on liquids in carryon baggage, bans aerosols

WASHINGTON | Air travelers were handed new rules Sunday, given permission to carry small amounts of liquid nonprescription medicine onto a plane and instructed to remove their shoes during security checks.

The eased restrictions on medicine and the mandatory shoe removal were among several measures the Transportation Security Administration ordered Sunday in response to the thwarted terror plot in Britain involving U.S.-bound airplanes.

TSA had previously banned all liquid medications; now it will allow up to 4 ounces of liquid nonprescription medicine.

BAGGAGE CHECK: Screeners look through luggage at Denver's airport on Sunday.

Those allegedly involved in the plot had planned to blow up as many as 10 planes flying from Britain to the U.S. using liquid explosives, which TSA's security equipment can't detect in carryon luggage.

In other measures, TSA said it would let fliers carry on low blood sugar treatments including glucose gel for diabetics; solid lipstick; and baby food. But it said all aerosols are prohibited.

On Saturday, the TSA added mascara to the list of banned items, which includes baby teething with gel or liquid inside, children's toys with gel inside and gel candles.

Homeland Security Secretary Michael Chertoff reassured people things would only go so far.

"I don't see us moving to a total ban on hand baggage at this point," he told ABC's "This Week" on Sunday. JOHN HEILPERIN (AP)

Lamont Surprised by Harsh Attacks

Senate nominee says Lieberman used U.K. plot to play politics

WASHINGTON | Democratic Senate nominee Ned Lamont, the anti-war candidate who toppled Sen. Joe Lieberman in the Connecticut primary, says he was surprised by Lieberman and Vice President Dick Cheney's claims that his victory could embolden terrorists.

"My God, here we have a terrorist threat against hearth and home and the very first thing that comes out of their mind is how can we turn this to partisan advantage. I find that offensive," Lamont said.

Lamont

After British officials disclosed they had thwarted a terrorist airline bombing plot on Thursday, Lieberman warned that Lamont's call for a phased withdrawal of troops from Iraq would be "taken as a tremendous victory" by terrorists.

Cheney suggested Wednesday that Lamont's victory might encourage "the al-Qaeda types" who want to "break the will of the American people in terms of our ability to stay in the fight and complete the task."

Chertoff: More Surveillance Needed

DHS secretary says foiled U.K. plot shows need for revising laws

WASHINGTON | The nation's chief of homeland security said Sunday that the U.S. should consider reviewing its laws to allow for more electronic surveillance and detention of possible terror suspects, citing last week's foiled plot.

Michael Chertoff, secretary of the Department of Homeland Security, stopped short of calling for immediate changes, noting there might be constitutional barriers to the type of wide police powers the British had in apprehending suspects in the plot to blow up airliners headed to the U.S.

But Chertoff made clear his belief that wider authority could thwart future attacks at a time when Congress is reviewing the proper scope of the Bush administration's executive powers for its warrantless eavesdropping program and military tribunals for detainees held at

STRATEGY: DHS Secretary Michael Chertoff, appearing on ABC's "This Week," said the U.S. should consider expanding surveillance programs to combat terrorism.

Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

"What helped the British in this case is the ability to be nimble, to be fast, to be flexible, to operate based on fast-moving information," he said. "We have to make sure our legal system allows us to do that. It's not like the 20th century, where you had time to get warrants."

The Bush administration has pushed for greater executive authority in the war on terror, leading it to create a warrantless eavesdropping program, hold suspects who are deemed as "enemy combatants" for long periods and establish a military tribunal system for detainees that affords defendants fewer rights than traditional courts-martial.

Congress is now reviewing some of the programs after lawmakers questioned the legality of the eavesdropping program and the Supreme Court ruled in June that the tribunals defied international law and had not been authorized by Congress.

On Sunday, Chertoff said the U.S. is remaining vigilant for other attacks, citing concerns that terror groups may "think we are distracted" after last week's foiled plot. Attaining "maximum flexibility" in surveillance will be critical in preventing future attacks, he said.

"We've done a lot in our legal system the last few years to move in the direction of that kind of efficiency," Chertoff said. "But we ought to constantly review our legal rules to make sure they're helping us, not hindering us."

Chertoff made the comments on "Fox News Sunday" and ABC's "This Week." HOPE YEN (AP)

Britain Guards Against New Threats

Travelers' frustrations build over long lines and canceled flights

LONDON | Authorities warned Britons to remain vigilant on Sunday, saying that 24 separate terrorism probes under way showed they could still be in the crosshairs of Islamic militants even after security forces foiled an alleged plot to bring down packed planes heading to the United States.

Tempers flared at the airports as hundreds of flights were canceled and lengthy security checks caused some passengers to miss their flights.

Home Secretary John Reid said authorities were conducting two dozen separate counterterrorism investigations in Britain, and there was no guarantee the government would be able to thwart every plot.

"We believe we have the main targets from this particular surveillance and plot," Reid told British Broadcasting Corp. television. "[But] there are still people out there who would carry out such attacks."

British police questioned 22 of the suspects in detention Sunday, but authorities remained silent about what, if anything, they have learned.

WAITING PAIN: A passenger waits at London's Heathrow Airport terminal to check in Sunday as flights continued to be delayed.

With no briefings by police or government officials, the British press was left to speculate on a wide range of theories.

The Sunday Mirror tabloid asserted that a female suspect in custody may have been planning to use her own baby as a diversion to smuggle a bomb onto the plane, but it did not name its sources. The Sunday Times reported that one of those in custody was believed to be al-Qaeda's leader in Britain, but it did not say which suspect. And The Independent on Sunday cited security sources as saying terrorists were planning an "Apocalyptic wave" of attacks. PAUL HAVEN (AP)

Blasts Leave 47 Dead In Shiite Neighborhood

Barrage of car bombs and rockets wounds 148 others in Baghdad

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | Car bombs and a rocket barrage struck a crowded predominantly Shiite neighborhood in Baghdad late Sunday, killing at least 47 people and wounding at least 148, authorities said.

The attack on the Zafraniyah neighborhood in southern Baghdad began about 7:15 p.m. with two car bombs and a barrage of an estimated nine rockets, Defense Ministry spokesman Col. Saddoun Abu al-Ula said.

He said the barrage heavily damaged three buildings, including a multistory apartment house that collapsed. Al-Ula said the rockets appeared to have been fired from Dora, one of the mostly Sunni districts targeted by U.S. troops in a new security crackdown against sectarian violence in the capital.

The complex style of the assault was similar to a July 27 attack of mortars, rockets and car bombs on another mostly Shiite district, Karradah, which killed 31 people. Police said the rockets and mortars that struck Karradah also were fired from Dora.

A Sunni extremist group, the al-Sahaba Soldiers, claimed responsibility for the Karradah attack to punish Shiites for supporting the "crusaders," or Americans, and the "treacherous" Iraqi government. (AP)

Ailing Castro Reaches Out

On his 80th birthday, leader tells Cubans to brace for 'adverse news'

HAVANA | Fidel Castro sent Cubans a sober greeting on his 80th birthday Sunday, saying he faces a long recovery from surgery — and warning they should be prepared for “adverse news.” But he encouraged them to be optimistic, saying Cuba “will continue marching on perfectly well.”

As a newspaper printed the first pictures of Castro since his illness, his younger brother, Raul, made his first public appearance as Cuba's acting president. State TV showed him at the airport greeting Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez on his arrival to celebrate Fidel's birthday.

Castro, who underwent surgery for an unspecified intestinal ailment that forced him to step aside as president two weeks ago, said in a statement that his health had improved, but stressed he still faced risks.

“To affirm that the recovery period will take a short time and that there is no risk would be absolutely incorrect,” said the statement in the Communist Youth newspaper, Juventud Rebelde. “I ask you all to be optimistic, and at the same time to be ready to face any adverse news.”

The Communist Party's newspaper, Granma, had offered a rosier picture of Castro's condition on Saturday, saying he was walking and talking again, and even working a bit. It compared him with a resistant tropical hardwood tree found in eastern Cuba, where he was born.

Leftist Calls for More Protests in Mexico

MEXICO CITY | Mexico's leftist presidential candidate promised on Sunday to maintain protest camps that have paralyzed downtown Mexico City until at least September, unless the nation's top electoral court orders a total recount in the still-disputed election.

Settling in for a long battle, Andres Manuel Lopez Obrador told supporters who launched the protest camps two weeks ago that “we could be here for years” if the tribunal does not grant his demand for a full recount. He also promised to spark a national leftist movement at a Sept. 16 convention.

The Federal Electoral Tribunal ordered a partial recount of 9 percent of the polling places, which was to end Sunday. The court's seven magistrates will review the results and release them later this month.

Lopez Obrador called for large-scale protests on Sept. 1, when President Vicente Fox gives his last state-of-the-nation address, and on Sept. 6, the deadline for the country's top electoral court to name a president-elect. He also said he wanted to hold a “national democratic convention” in Mexico City on Sept. 16, the nation's independence day. (AP)

Prison-Based Brazilian Gang Kidnaps Reporter

SAO PAULO, BRAZIL | Brazil's most notorious organized-crime group kidnapped a television reporter and forced his station to broadcast a video Sunday in which the gang calls for improvements in the country's prison system.

The prison-based First Capital Command, or PCC, whose leaders have been accused of ordering recent waves of violence in Sao Paulo state, said it would release 30-year-old Guilherme Portanova only after the showing of the video on Globo, Brazil's most-watched television channel.

Globo interrupted its regular programming early Sunday to broadcast the video in which an armed and hooded man read a PCC statement criticizing the prison system and demanding reviews of sentences. (AP)

Camera Installation Begins in D.C.

Nearly 50 devices are planned as part of city crime-fighting efforts

WASHINGTON | Police on Friday finished installing the first four of nearly 50 closed-circuit television cameras in city neighborhoods as part of an effort to fight crime in residential areas. The cameras, which could number as many as 47

by late September, will be used for videotape surveillance 24 hours a day at least through October.

"That will help to deter criminal activity in the first place and, if crimes do occur, help us identify, apprehend and convict the offenders," said city police Chief Charles H. Ramsey.

While police have used 19 closed-circuit cameras in the city in recent years, activation of that equipment has been limited to special events or periods of heightened public safety alert because of terrorism threats.

The neighborhood cameras were authorized last month as part of the Enhanced Crime Prevention and Abatement Emergency Amendment Act of 2006, approved by the city council on July 21. The law allows their use through the end of October.

Use of the cameras after that date will require additional council approval.

The devices will be used in areas designated by police as "crime hot spots" because of complaints about drug dealing, violent crimes and other serious incidents.

While the cameras will operate 24 hours a day, they will not be constantly monitored. Police will review the videotapes when a crime occurs. (AP)

This year's race for governor could be the most expensive ever in Maryland. Mayor Martin O'Malley has been racing across the country in recent weeks seeking campaign funds. ### City Asks Residents to Give Water to Trees It Planted

Weeks of hot, dry weather have prompted officials to urge residents to water young trees planted by the city near their homes. Since January 2005, the District Department of Transportation has planted about 8,000 trees throughout the city; many of the trees were planted along sidewalks on land owned by the city. City foresters say the young saplings need about 5 to 10 gallons of water every seven to 10 days when the area doesn't get regular rainfall. The city has been using grant money from a nonprofit foundation to preserve existing trees and finance new plantings. (AP)

Sales Tax Holiday in D.C. Ends

Next chance to save on city shopping not until late November

WASHINGTON | Sunday was the last day for the city's annual back-to-school Sales Tax Holiday. Since Aug. 5, shoppers were able to save nearly 6 percent on clothing items or school supplies costing $100 dollars each or less if they purchased the items in the District.

The savings came from the temporary suspension of the city's sales tax on some items.

Members of the D.C. Council authorize two Sales Tax Holidays each year to help promote shopping in the city. The late summer effort gives families a chance to save money on back-to-school items.

The holiday season Sales Tax Holiday begins on the Friday after Thanksgiving. (AP)

Teen Charged in Series of Car Fires

TAKOMA PARK, MD. | A teenager has been charged in connection with several fires that destroyed at least three vehicles in Montgomery County during the weekend. The incidents began early Saturday morning when firefighters were called out to fight five small fires during a period of several hours.

Another car fire occurred around 4:15 a.m. in the 400 block of Beech Avenue.

On Sunday afternoon, investigators got a tip from a citizen that led to the arrest of a 16-year-old boy.

Montgomery County Fire and Rescue spokesman Pete Piringier said the young man is charged with three counts of arson, five counts of attempted arson and six counts of malicious burning. Other charges are pending and the case remains under investigation.

The 16-year-old is being held at the juvenile detention facility in Rockville. (AP)

Nationals' Gaffes Give Mets 3-1 Win

Washington commits 3 errors as New York takes advantage late

NATIONALS | The New York Mets got a tie-breaking homer from little-used Michael Tucker, 2 1/3 innings of scoreless relief and a sliding grab on the gravel by Carlos Delgado for the final out.

The Washington Nationals made three fielding errors, star rookie Ryan Zimmerman committed a base-running gaffe and catcher Brian Schneider stormed out of the clubhouse with an explosive-laden tirade.

Any doubts as to which team has the National League's best record and which is last in the NL East?

In a Mets club filled with All-Stars and MVP candidates, it was spare-part Tucker who came through with a solo shot in the eighth inning on the only pitch he saw Sunday to lift the Mets to a 3-1 victory over the Nationals.

Tucker was released by the Nationals in spring training, signed a minor league deal with the Mets in April and was called up Wednesday when Cliff Floyd went on the DL.

"Every day, it's a new guy," said New York's Jose Valentin, who added an insurance run with a sacrifice fly off Jon Rauch (3-3) in the ninth. "He was today. Tomorrow, who knows who it's going to be?"

There was also Steve Trachsel's 6 2/3 innings of one-run ball, the only blemish being Alfonso Soriano's 38th homer of the season and 200th of his career. And submariner Chad Bradford (4-2) got Soriano to ground out with the bases loaded in the seventh. HOWARD FENDRICH (AP)

Slam, Snag By Lowell Beat Birds

Red Sox finish 3-game sweep of Baltimore in dramatic fashion, 11-9

ORIOLES | Mike Lowell hit a grand slam in the first inning and made a game-saving play for the final out, helping the Boston Red Sox hold off the Baltimore Orioles 11-9 Sunday for a three-game sweep.

Boston's Manny Ramirez had his hitting streak end at 27 games. He might have been credited with an infield single, but jogged down the line on a play ruled an error.

Jonathan Papelbon got his 31st save in 36 chances, thanks to Lowell. The Orioles scored twice in the ninth, on an error by shortstop Alex Cora and a bases-loaded walk to Brian Roberts, but Lowell backhanded Melvin Mora's sharp grounder down the third-base line and threw him out with the bases loaded.

Daniel Cabrera (5-8) gave up seven runs in four innings and is 1-1 since being recalled from Triple-A Ottawa last Tuesday.

Lowell's fifth career slam was his first of the season for Boston. The Orioles have allowed 10 slams this season, most in the majors. Corey Patterson, Kevin Millar and Roberts homered for Baltimore. (AP)

Talented Rookie Is Still Just a Rookie

First-year linebacker Rocky McIntosh must earn his spot on the 'D'

REDSKINS | When Sean Taylor was the No. 5 overall pick in the draft two years ago, he was made to toil with the Washington Redskins' second-string and third-string units throughout training camp, even though his talent as an instant-impact player was obvious.

Carlos Rogers went through the same drill last year.

It's been no surprise, therefore, to see Rocky McIntosh playing backup during this year's training camp. The second-round draft choice (No. 53 overall) from Miami is seen as a natural successor to fill the weakside linebacker vacancy created by the departure of LaVar Arrington, but the rookie has quickly learned that no one is given anything when playing for Gregg Williams' defense.

"He chewed me out today good," McIntosh said after a rough practice. "But it's all a mental thing. You've got to learn to block that out."

Coaches expect current starter Warrick Holdman to be more at ease in his second year under Williams, but McIntosh is undoubtedly the future.

"Typical rookie," linebackers coach Dale Lindsey said. "Coming in with good athletic ability, his mind has overloaded his feet because of all the stuff he has to learn."

Anthony, back from a knee injury, scores 19 in defeat of Lithuania

BASKETBALL | With Carmelo Anthony back at full strength, the United States had little trouble with Lithuania.

Anthony, who hyperextended his knee and left in the second quarter of a win over Brazil last week, scored 19 points Sunday as the United States cruised to a 111-88 win over Lithuania in a tune-up for the world championships.

Anthony set the tone with a slam dunk in the opening minutes that drew a huge ovation from the crowd, and LeBron James closed out the first half with a 3-pointer just before the buzzer to give the U.S. a 56-32 lead at the break.

Dwyane Wade added 14 points as the United States improved to 4-0 in exhibition games leading to the world championships, which begin Aug. 19. The Americans took a 28-point lead after the third quarter.

"Our game plan was to just keep

Mystics' Season Ends With a Loss

Before next weekend's playoff series, the team loses to New York by 12

MYSTICS | Shameka Christon and Cathrine Kraayeveld scored 22 points apiece, and Becky Hammon had 21 to lead the New York Liberty to a 93-81 victory over the playoff-bound Washington Mystics in the regular-season finale Sunday.

Iceiss Tillis added 10 points and Christon also had a season-high 10 rebounds for New York (11-23), which won seven of its last 10 games.

Alana Beard scored 29 points, DeLisha Milton-Jones had 15 and Nakia Sanford added 12 points and nine rebounds for the Mystics (18-16).

Both teams shot 31-for-62 — 50 percent — from the field. The Liberty were 13-for-26 on 3-pointers — and 18-for-18 from the free-throw line. The Mystics made just 6 of 10 3-pointers and were 13 of 19 from the line.

Washington, which finished 5-12 on the road, opens the post-season at home against top-seeded Connecticut on Friday night.

FAST LANE: Not that "World Trade Center" is anyone's idea of summer escapism, but the Oliver Stone movie placed third at the box office this weekend. Will Ferrell's "Talladega Nights" once again reigned; dance romance "Step Up" opened at No. 2.

Entertainment

Magnate in a T-Shirt

Fall Out Boy bassist Pete Wentz has a label and wants more

IMPRESSARIOS | In building Decaydance Records, Fall Out Boy bassist Pete Wentz has looked no further than his computer screen.

He signed his label's biggest band, Panic! At the Disco, after listening to the group online and secured his first soundtrack deal after reading the blogger-fueled hype surrounding New Line's upcoming camp thriller, "Snakes on a Plane," opening on Friday.

Wentz is creating a budding little pop-punk empire. His label, a joint venture with New York-based Fueled by Ramen — where Fall Out Boy is signed — has spawned more than one success story since its launch last year.

Panic! was Decaydance's first signing. Wentz found the act when it posted "Time to Dance," one of its first songs, on his LiveJournal blog in late 2004.

Wentz also has taken a page from the Tom Delonge and Mark Hoppus manual for creating a successful punk business. Like the former members of Blink-182, Wentz runs his own clothing firm, Clandestine Industries.

HAIRCUT 100: Decaydance Records signed the foppish quartet Panic! At the Disco.

With so much on his plate, only his duties with Fall Out Boy, which is in preproduction on a new album, prevent Wentz from becoming a full-time entrepreneur.

"I'm the guy you can reach between 8 p.m. and 5 a.m.," he said. "I'm just now learning about marketing and that whole aspect of the label. It's something I'm interested in being involved in, but I'm no expert."

Wentz downplays his interest in the business side, though he said he gets "more sucked into it" with each Decaydance release. But he also noted, "I won't lie. I'm a control freak. I want to fly the plane. I want to prescribe myself medicine. I'm real neurotic about that kind of stuff."

Wentz has been heavily involved in the soundtrack to "Snakes on a Plane," choosing the tracks and picking the remixers for the album. Acts on the album include Panic! at the Disco, the Hush Sound, Cee-Lo, the All-American Rejects and Fall Out Boy, among others.

More ambitious is Wentz's long-term vision for the label, which he sees as a sort of social democracy. New bands are signed only after winning a majority vote from those already on the label, and Wentz is formulating a plan in which each act would share in the financial success of the other.

"All the bands are given incentives or bonuses of some sort when bands go gold or platinum," Wentz said. "A lot of labels have tried to have a family vibe, but we think it's important to actually have one, and not just have one when we talk in magazine articles."

TODD MARTENS (BILLBOARD)

Ross exposes the dark side of the Sunshine State in his debut album.

Ross' Ill-Gotten Gains

Miami hip-hop star raps proudly about his criminal skills

MUSIC | Def Jam president Jay-Z was so impressed by rapper Rick Ross, he not only won a bidding war for Ross' services, but he also came out of semi-retirement to add verses to a remix of the Miami hip-hop star's hit, "Hustlin'."

That patronage has guaranteed Ross' cachet, but the bearded 300-pounder with the grizzly-bear growl is the kind of guy who commands attention anyway. Especially with "Port of Miami" (Def Jam), a debut album that's an unapologetic celebration of his experiences in the cocaine trade, and a similarly amoral ode to bling.

"Where My Money (I Need That)" is the thesis, and "Blow," which displays a childlike excitement at material excess, supplies the natural conclusion. With slow, menacing beats from Cool & Dre, Jazze Pha and the Runners, "Port of Miami" lumbers from start to finish with the unstoppable momentum of Frankenstein's monster.

And the same simplemindedness, too. Like 50 Cent, Ross is an outsized personality masquerading as an emcee; each arresting couplet about the dark side of sunny Florida is offset by a half-dozen stanzas of hoarsely rhymed nonsense. At least he has a job waiting for him when his hip-hop run is over.

Growing Restless

Suburban angst supplies rich soil for the satirical 'Weeds'

RETURN | “Weeds” (10 p.m., Showtime) returns for a second season with Nancy (Mary-Louise Parker) forced to decide between her flourishing marijuana business and her budding romance with her new boyfriend (Martin Donovan), who just happens to be an agent for the Drug Enforcement Agency. She’s also trying to corral her family into some semblance of order.

Nancy's role as a pot-growing mom trying to keep up with the

Randy Teppner/SHOWTIME

BUDS: Parker and Perkins aren't your average affluent moms. Or are they?

Joneses in an upscale community is clearly a suburban satire, but much of the dialogue is more smug than insightful.

Although its drug-dealing story line remains unique, "Weeds" is part of a recent trend of shows in which beautiful, 30-ish women behave like baffled teenagers while trying to make sense of their lives amidst showroom houses and cookie-cutter affluence.

"Weeds" really lights up when civic leader Doug (Kevin Nealon) and Nancy's tough-talking, cancer-stricken friend, Celia (Elizabeth Perkins), are onscreen. Viewers should get plenty of chances to see them bicker and battle, as Celia has decided to run against Doug for his seat on the City Council. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

Fads

Youthful Iranians are embracing tattoos, despite official ban

It's an undercover movement — literally: Tattoos have become a fad among many young Iranian women who proudly display them in private but must keep them under wraps from authorities.

"This is the tattoo generation," said Milad, a 24-year-old artist who does body art as a sideline in his Tehran studio. He gave only his first name, fearing police might crack down.

"It's the new sign of being hip."

It's a select, largely female clientele, mostly teens and 20-somethings in Tehran's most affluent and style-savvy districts. But these have been the birthplaces for nearly every limit-testing trend since the strict dress codes of the Islamic Revolution began to erode in the late 1990s. It began with nose jobs and then moved on to makeovers, body-hugging jackets, funky sneakers and head scarves that leave more hair exposed than covered.

As the Islamic coverings shrink, the next fashion frontier appears to be what's underneath, and it's catching on with men, too.

"This is an underground business. I'm not too scared of the police anymore. But you still have to be careful."

Maryam, 20, wears a fish-shaped tattoo on her shoulder and won't give her full name. "We have so many secrets from the authorities that they know about but can't stop: our parties, our music. This is just another one," she says.

The tattoo wave is so new — and with such high chic appeal — that few people have paused to think much about the consequences of being marked for life, said Milad. The only real plan for the future is that some girls pick intimate spots that only a spouse would see — such as places normally covered by undergarments.

"Most girls don't want their future mother-in-law, for example, to see they have a tattoo," said Milad.

it was rare to get a teenage girl," said Milad. "Now that's the typical client."

For an average of 800,000 rials — about U.S. $90 — they choose from Milad's standard designs — interwoven flames called "Creeping Death," a burning cross dubbed "Dragon Sword," or, for the less daring, butterflies, flowers and unicorns.

But he'll work up anything for an extra fee. He's done marijuana leaves and symbols from Iran's pre-Islamic Zoroastrian faith. A Muslim girl asked for some Hebrew letters — in a country whose leaders repeatedly call for Israel's destruction.

"She didn't even know what the letters meant," said Milad. "She just

"This is an underground business," said Milad, wearing baggy shorts and purple, American-made athletic shoes. "I'm not too scared of the police anymore. But you still have to be careful."

He gets a call for a job about once a week, and the customers are getting noticeably younger.

Placing also is getting more adventurous; Milad said more women are asking for tattoos on the small of their backs or on their breasts. But it would be an outrage in a society that still tries to segregate the sexes at some colleges and public events.

But Milad remains tattoo-free.

"You can't do them on yourself well, and I don't like anyone else's work," he said. BRIAN MURPHY (AP)

A Louisville hotel surrounds its guests with edgy artwork

At seemingly every turn, visitors can gaze upon contemporary art ranging from quirky to whimsical to daring. It's not your typical gallery, though — at this one you're invited to spend the night.

The place is Louisville, Ky.'s, 21C Museum Hotel, which combines the comforts of a boutique hotel with an eye-catching collection of edgy works by artists from around the world. Forget about reproduced art. At 21C, the works are originals.

"We don't use art as decoration here. You're living with art," said Steve Wilson, who developed and owns 21C with his wife, Laura Lee Brown, a descendant of the founder of Louisville-based liquor giant Brown-Forman Corp.

21C, which opened in early April, features 91 rooms and 9,000 square feet of exhibition space. It's strategically located just a short stroll from such downtown attractions as the Muhammad Ali Center, the Louisville Slugger Museum where the famous bats are made, a science center and the Frazier International History Museum. The city's performing arts center is down the street and Churchill Downs — home of the Kentucky Derby — is only a short drive away.

The hotel's museum is free for guests and anyone else wanting a peek at avant-garde art. The atrium features 5,000 square feet in exhibition space.

Visitors lingering in the 21C lobby can gaze at statues, paintings and a singing chandelier, which bemuses visitors. Push a button and the chandelier jiggles amid a recording of a soprano singing a high-pitched aria.

"Unlike a museum where you look and leave, here you can go back and really study it again," hotel guest Debra Burnham Hyman said.

21C — the culmination of a $25 million project in which several historic buildings were restored — is the inspiration of Brown and Wilson, avid art collectors. Part of their multimillion-dollar collection is on display at the museum, which is run by a foundation that the couple formed.

The artwork is seemingly everywhere, even in the bathrooms. Human eyes are projected onto mirrors in the main lobby bathrooms. Actually, they are the eyes of blind people, offering a message about vanity, Wilson said.

"We come in here to adjust everything and look in the mirror to see how we look," he said, "and then you're confronted with people who can't see you, and so what does it matter?"

Strolling through the hotel, visitors encounter more art in the hallways and in the guest rooms. "There's a little surprise everywhere," Wilson said.

Each room offers iPods with music customized to each guest's tastes, flat screen TVs and sterling silver mint julep cups. Connected to the hotel is an upscale restaurant, Proof on Main, that also features an array of contemporary art. The hotel also features rooms for business meetings.

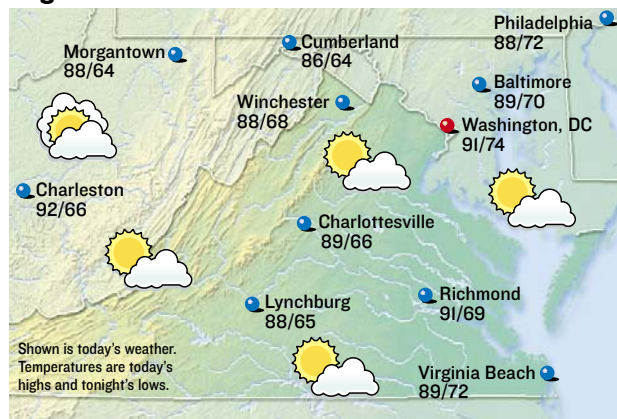

Depending on the season, guest rooms start at $199 per night.

Celebrity Scents

Stars are bottling their signature smells for successful sales

A SKIN-DEEP BRUSH with fame is now just a spritz away. You can douse yourself with eau de Britney, Paris or JLo, as stars jump on the lucrative fragrance bandwagon by creating their signature scents.

With everyone from romance novelist Danielle Steel to shock rocker Marilyn Manson brewing up their own perfumes, celebrity fragrances are the fastest-growing segment of the $2.9 billion perfume market, according to market researcher NPD Group. But some experts warn the market is heading for saturation as increasingly unlikely celebrities latch onto the trend.

"There is a kind of exacerbation of the phenomenon right now, which makes me think we are not far from the breaking point," said

Marie-Claude Sicard, a Paris-based expert in brand analysis and strategy.

The craze for celebrity scents is credited with reviving a dormant fragrance industry and bringing a whole new customer base of under-40s to perfume counters. Celebrity and celebrity-endorsed brands represented 23 percent of the top 100 women's fragrances in the United States in 2005, up from 10 percent in 2003, according to NPD Group data.

Offerings in the pipeline include scents from New York Yankees shortstop Derek Jeter, teen queen Hilary Duff and R&B singer Mariah Carey, as fierce competition prompts manufacturers to seek out celebrities from every walk of life.

Elizabeth Taylor was the first to capitalize on her brand status with a perfume line. Despite her absence from movie screens, Taylor's fragrance White Diamonds remains a top seller

Clockwise from top left: DANIELLE by Danielle Steel will be released to stores in late September and carry a price tag of $50 for 1.7 ounces.

IN CONTROL CURIOUS BRITNEY SPEARS, the singer's third fragrance, launched earlier this summer and costs $53 for 3.3 ounces at Sephora. And DIANOCHÉ by Daisy Fuentes, which combines a day scent and an evening scent, is available exclusively at Kohl's department stores for $43 for 1.7 ounces.

more than a decade after its launch.

That success was considered an exception until 2002, when Jennifer Lopez jump-started the category by launching her first scent, Glow, on the back of a red-hot movie and music career.

Though most celebrities claim to have had some input on their fragrances, the degree of involvement varies.

"Sex and the City" star Sarah Jessica Parker, conscious of her status as a fashion icon to young women, closely monitored the development of her fragrance, Lovely, but it is safe to assume that sports personalities, for instance, have less input.

Robin Krug, editor of the fragrance blog NowSmellThis, said that consumers just face too much product.

"A common complaint on the fragrance blogs and forums is that everything smells the same." JOELLE DIDERICH (AP)

Beauty

I See Your True Colors

Like almost everything MAC does, the new TECHNA KOHL LINERS ($15, maccosmetics.com) are better in color. The mechanical-pencil style device (which means no sharpener needed! Yay!) lets you line lids in two styles. Use it straight on for a fine, defined look; apply it using the flat side for a smokier, sexier style. The color is long-lasting and doesn't bleed, even through 100-plus-degree heat. While we liked the neutral colors, we had much more fun with the more vibrant, crazy hues. Brown-eyed girls should go for Jade Way or Purple Dash, while those with the blues should try Auto-de-blu. KRISTEN PAGE-KIRBY (EXPRESS)

Hair

Also Likes Taking Walks in the Rain

If you like pina colodas, then you'll have cravings every time you use MATRIX'S BIOLAGE SUNSORIALS PROTECTIVE HAIR OIL ($13.95, Matrix Salons). The smell of coconut stays in your hair long after you spray it on. The spray leaves the hair shiny and smooth, while the UV filters protect colored hair from fading and other sun damage. The spray is also water-repellent, so you can hit the pool after a spritz.

This tester saw softer, shinier hair, but also noticed that the overall effect wasn't much better than similar products: It's not worse, but it's not overwhelmingly better, either. But if you like tropical, beachy scents, it may be worth hitting the bottle. CAROLYN STEEVES

Defending the Old Dominion

TURF | Attention, Old Dominion: Bloggers from D.C. generally share a near-universal disdain for Virginia. That's why it's a bit surprising that DCURBANFAMILY.BLOGSPOT.COM is open to being convinced that the commonwealth may have its strengths:

"Although not one of my favorite subjects, Virginia has been a focus here for a couple of days. Maybe we could do something a little more constructive, and explain to me why Virginia ain't so bad. ... Change my mind. Comments encouraged."

That call for action appeared to have been posted at 11:18 a.m. on Friday. As of 5:30 p.m., nobody had leapt to the commonwealth's defense.

Poems for Bradley

RUNWAY JURY | Each Thursday, Express' Arion Berger writes a review of the week's episode of Bravo's "Project Runway." This week, she shared her poetic stylings on the episode's big loser, Bradley, whose poorly structured garment, which he was told to design to fit Cher's sense of style, earned him a ticket home:

*Bradley of the Moon
Cher should kick your skinny butt
You must be high ... oh*

She asked for readers to submit their poetic takes. They didn't disappoint.

SHIELD YOUR EYES: Bradley's shiny, cheap outfit surely isn't Cher material.

From commenter Artman:
*For fashions designed quite badly,
There's no one better than Bradley.
With his greasy beard,
He was very weird.
And now he is gone, not sadly.*

From commenter Perrik:
*Fuzzy man shows us
Rejected Star Trek costume,
Farewell ocean's squid*

Lisa De Moraes

Post TV columnist LISA DE MORAES was online Friday at washingtonpost.com to discuss the current "Today" show talent roster, Andy Rooney and meeting Gene Simmons in person. Ick!

How about the train wreck that the "Today" show has become? Day by day, Matt Lauer is losing it, Ann Curry and Campbell Brown prove they are in no way qualified to co-host the show, and Al Roker is starting to look desperate.

I just watched Ann Curry's glutinous interview with some chick from Us or whatever mag it is that had the "exclusive" on Vaughniston's engagement. Meredith needs to start quick before they all die of saccharin poisoning.

"Project Runway" question: How much do you think it hurts to have tattoos done across your Adam's apple?

Not half as much as it hurts the models to purge their meals in order to stay at a size 0.

What do you hear from Andy Rooney these days? Has he actually passed on and is CBS just unwilling to acknowledge it, choosing instead to re-run his clips from the last five years (many of which would be plainly indistinguishable from the next)?

Sorry, you will never ever get me to say a mean thing about Andy Rooney. Let us not forget, I'm the gal who wrote about an ad that featured Mickey Rooney's bare backside and, like an idiot, wrote "Andy Rooney" by mistake. Mickey Rooney: Andy Hardy: Andy Rooney ... so confusing

Is Gene Simmons the lamest human being on the planet? If not, who is?

You know what's the lamest thing about him? When you are introduced to him in the hallway at the Ritz-Carlton Huntington Hotel in Pasadena and he gets all hi-there-little-nobody-reporter-chick, aren't-I-the-hottest, suavest-thing-you've-met-in-ages? Like he's Colin Firth or Cary Grant or something. Ick, ick, ick! And why does he use boot polish on his hair — can't he afford a proper color job?

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Ask and ye shall receive—or, at the very least, you will be able to open the door to future rewards. You mustn't be impatient at this time.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your own viewpoint this week can benefit those around you as well—but you'll have to accept the fact that some things are real mysteries.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You may claim to dislike surprises, but that which is unexpected can provide you with a great deal of private pleasure.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You're going to have to share the wealth very soon—so why not now? You know who is going to be the beneficiary of your generosity, don't you?

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) There's no reason for you to doubt the role of fate—or, if you prefer, the stars—in your life. Still, you can plan with great success.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) All you have to do is make a start and everything will follow from there. The smallest steps can lead to the biggest things.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You're not playing with kid stuff this time; you must acknowledge what you're doing affects everyone on a very grown-up level.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Nothing more than a hint is necessary for you to give someone a loud and clear message. He or she will put two and two together.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Others are sure to listen to you in a way that you're sure to enjoy—but which, in the long run, will bring you far more profit than that.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Why are you so interested in what a friend or loved one is doing? Put away your jealousy and start thinking about your own situation.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Someone close to you will have a suggestion that, at first, rubs you the wrong way—but which, a little later, proves itself to be pure gold.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) There will be a few problems to tackle before the day is out, but if you keep your head together you can face anything with style.
